Art Unit: 1774

1. The election of species is hereby withdrawn.
2. Claims 1-20 are provisionally rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-20 of copending Application No. 10/011,681. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instant claims are directed to the method of using the ink jet recording element of the other application and recite every limitation of the recording element therein.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented. It is noted that while this is a provisional rejection the copending application has been allowed.

3. JP 2000203154 is representative of the state of the art. It discloses an ink jet recording element comprising porous cross-linked polymeric particles and a binder in an ink jet recording layer. The document does not teach or suggest inclusion of both an anionic or cationic dispersant as well as an oppositely charged surfactant in the ink jet recording layer of the medium within the ratio of surfactant to dispersant of 0.04 parts to about 0.03 parts by weight.
